

In This Issue...

The "species look" will be a highlight of the Northeast Regional Conference in East Windsor, New Jersey, Nov. 4-6. Page 165.

Rhododendrons have numerous flower shapes, each with its own descriptive name. See the Color Glossary on page 178.

The late Ted Anderson was an avid hybridizer. Two of his hybrids are listed in the Plant Name Register. Page 168.

Table of Contents

Features

- 123 Colonsay House Gardens: Kiloran: Isle of Colonsay, Argyll, Scotland BY JOHN HAMMOND
An historical account that dates back to 1722
- 135 Plant Hunting in Arunachal Pradesh, India BY PETER COX
Exploration in largely unspoilt country
- 147 Genus Rhododendron Status in Sikkim Himalaya: An Assessment BY ONKAR N. TIWARI and U.K. CHAUHAN
An update on a major source of our garden rhododendrons
- 159 Raising Plants for an ARS Convention: A Potting Party BY DONALD W. HYATT
How to have fun while "potting on" for a plant sale
- 162 Lendonwood Gardens: Where East Meets West BY LEONARD MILLER
How to build a rhododendron garden in Oklahoma
- 165 Species and The Species Look: A Preview of the Northeast Regional Conference BY PEG VAN PATTON
Conference focuses on the attraction of species rhododendrons
- 178 A Color Glossary: Tubular-funnel Flower Shape BY ELEANOR PHILP
A photo illustration of a flower shape

Society News

- 142 Awards
146 In Memoriam
147 ARS Grant Awards
148 Rhododendron Calendar
176 New Members
180 In Memoriam
180 Chapter/District and Special Donations

Publications

- 168 ARS Register of Plant Names and Checklist—Summer 2005 Supplement
181 ARS Publication List

Cover Photographs

Clockwise from top left: red-flowered R. vaseyi by Don Hyatt; Colonsay House by John Hammond; 'Lendonwood' by Len Miller; seedlings of 'Curtis Creek Red Max' by Don Hyatt; R. bureavii by Jens Birck; Cardiocrinum giganteum by Peter Cox.